

IN THE CHURCHES.

FIRST BAPTIST

Yesterday was truly a great day with the First Baptist church. The first service was with the Sunday school, which was attended by nearly three hundred persons, and there was considerable enthusiasm in all departments.

At 11 o'clock a large congregation assembled and the offering was taken after two brief but earnest addresses by Rev. J. J. Pipkins and Pastor Weaver. The amount collected was more than $500, which is by far the largest collection ever made by the church on the first day of the offering. This sum will be largely increased when other members who were not present make their contributions.

Following immediately the collection was the ordination of Rev. S. W. Buchanan. A presbytery composed of the ministers and deacons present was organized. The pastor was made chairman and Mr. J. M. Hare was made secretary. Thompson Creek church, having called Rev. Buchanan as pastor, the First Baptist church was called upon to ordain him for his work as pastor. The pastor thoroughly examined him as to his conversion and call to the ministry, and also as to his doctrinal views. His answers being entirely satisfactory, he was recommended for ordination by the presbytery. The charge was delivered by Rev. J. J. Pipkins, in an earnest and appropriate address upon his life work. Rev. Walter Davis, of Waco, presented the Bible and Rev. Road Nash offered the ordination prayer, after which Rev. Buchanan pronounced the benediction.

The report would not be complete without mentioning the Baptist Young People's Union. The Sunday school room was full of members and visitors at the appointed hour. Miss Pipkins, the president, called the meeting to order and made a glowing report on the work of the union for state missions. The offering was considerably more than fifty dollars, the amount pledged. Miss Waldine Sanders was leader and she used the subject of "Responsibility" in a most impressive way. The union is doing a great work.

A large audience assembled at night and Rev. Walter Davis, who had been attending associations south of Bryan and who came in to look upon our school, preached an earnest gospel sermon.

Eight united with the church, including an entire household. A great day with this church has passed into history.

FIRST METHODIST.

The congregation at the Methodist church yesterday morning was about as usual. The pastor's subject was "Foot Washing," and the text was a part of John 13:8. He said, in substance: The consideration of the hopes and customs of the Israelites, and the immediate circumstances preceding the act of washing the disciples' feet, show conclusively that the Master meant to teach the duty of His followers performing helpful services, however humble the service may be. That unselfish service was the most God-like quality man could have. The act of foot washing, never having been repeated by the Apostles or in the early church, was not to be continued as a symbolic act of worship, but that all followers of Jesus should be ready at all times to do everything in their power to make life brighter and more hopeful for all others.

At 7:30 p. m. the subject was "Heroism and Efficiency" in Bryan. The text was Matthew 13:57. The pastor deplored the tendency to regard other days than the present and distant professional and commercial men superior to those near at hand. He declared that among the honest poor in Bryan there were many truly heroic spirits—men battling against poverty for their families, refusing to adopt corrupt methods, though they might make life easier; girls not only struggling to maintain themselves honorably, but often laboring to maintain helpless parents, when paths of sin were so alluring and were being traveled by so many. The spirit of dissatisfaction with our times and conditions is well high universal and may easily become positively wicked.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The Sunday school and the church services were more largely attended than usual. At the morning hour the text was from the Sermon on the Mount, Matthew 5:41: "Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him seven." The evening sermon was based on the moral of the parable of Dives and Lazarus, as recorded in Luke 16:21: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead."

ST. JOSEPH'S.

First mass was celebrated at 8 o'clock. After the mass an instruction was given on the gospel of the twenty-third Sunday after Pentecost. At 9:30 o'clock the Sunday school met. At 10 o'clock a sermon in Polish was preached. At 10:30 o'clock high mass was celebrated. After the gospel a sermon in English was delivered on the raising back to life the daughter of Jairus, recorded in Matthew, ninth chapter. At 7:30 p. m. the pastor spoke on the epistle of St. Paul to the Philippians, chapter 3. After the recitation of the rosary benediction was given.

LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT.

Contracts for sidewalk building have been signed that will make a continuous walk from the Christian church past the Eastside school to the residence of Capt. A. F. Wilson.

The merchants say the trade from the country this year has been enormous. Besides this, there has seldom been a day this fall that there were not at least five families from Grimes and Madison counties here, buying supplies and trading. Think of the advantage of a railroad from that section of the country, coming into Bryan on the east, and a railway from the Brazos bottom on the west. It is possible.

Bryan has received nearly 17,000 bales of cotton this season and the price paid has been in the neighborhood of 14 cents for most of it. This is a large amount of money that has been poured into our midst and the greater part of it is still here, as the increase in bank deposits shows.

Bryan has 1500 students who buy their necessities from home merchants. That puts enterprise stock above par.

Did you ever stop to think that Bryan has a good chance to be the largest city in Central Texas? Some of the reasons for believing so will be given in our weekly report on improvements tomorrow.

More Hogs Needed.

A large percentage of the hogs used by the Texas packing houses are raised outside the state, Oklahoma, Louisiana, New Mexico and other bordering states furnishing large quantities for consumption by the Texas packeries. It is a well known fact that those sections of the country which are known as the hog raising districts are the most prosperous sections of the state, enjoying financial stability and prosperity the year round.

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends, at Neighbors in Bryan Will Show You How.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it.

But it won't cure it.

You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it;

Reaches the cause; relieve the pain.

They cure, too, so Bryan people say.

John J. Stacey, Astin St., Bryan, Texas, says: "When seventeen years of age I strained my back and from that time until I was relieved by Doan's Kidney Pills, I suffered terribly from pains in my joints. I was also bothered greatly by a kidney weakness.

When I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, I made up my mind to try them, and obtained a box at Emmel & Maloney's Drug Store. They strengthened my kidneys and relieved the pain in my back, thereby convincing me of their value."

The Inspiring Bagpipes.

It was at a seaside resort, and along the board walk came marching a band of highland bagpipers in full costume. They were tremendous fellows, but their music, to my untutored ears, was like the squealings of forty stuck pigs. Yet I have never heard strains to compare with theirs for arousing a desire to die for one's country. I think bagpipe music must have been fashioned back in the old days by some demon of perversity out of the whistle of arrows, the clash of claymores, the neighing of war steeds and the shrieks of the dying. When I hear it I think of the wheel of fortune, the car of Juggernaut, the mills of the gods and the liquidatorial rack and screw. It whisks along with a cyclonic rhythm that sets the feet to tramping and the blood to boiling.—Robert M. Gay in Atlantic.

A Scandal Spoiled.

"Of course he and his wife seem devoted to each other now," said the jealous Miss Gaussip, "but do you think she will always be so true and all that?"

"Well," replied Miss Klidder, "I have reason to know that only last night he had occasion to set a trap for her."

"Ah! Do you know, I suspected something?"

"They more than suspected. They knew there were mice in the house."—Philadelphia Press.

The Lamp of a Man's Life.

Dr. Holmes said the lamp of a man's life has three wicks—brain, blood and breath—and to turn down any one of them makes the other two go out. The wounds a man will survive and even disregard so long as his head, heart and lungs are unhurt have long been one of the wonders of war history.

Gypsies and Death.

The custom of placing the property of the dead in their graves has always been followed by the true Romyany gypsies. It is due to some old tradition of ill luck attending the possession of an article whose former owner is gone, and much valuable property is buried in this belief. There is also a sentiment among gypsies against the possession of anything that has belonged to a dead person, because it serves to remind the living of the departed and inspire in them a dread of death. The custom of burying their property with gypsy dead dates from the earliest history of the Romyany tribes.

His Discipline.

"Pop, you must take this child in hand. I have had about all that I can stand. She has no notion of minding me; it is time you took her across your knee."

"Send her to me," said Pop, with a frown. "It won't take me long to tone her down."

But how could he punish her, tell me, do, when she looked at him with her eyes of blue? Looked at him in the same glad way that her mother did in that faroff day when she was his sweetheart and he her beau. How could he strike her? He'd like to know?

But still he took her upon his knee and at once was lost in a reverie that carried him back to a shady street and a little maid whom he used to meet, a blue eyed maid whose counterpart now sat on his knee with a beating heart, waiting for him to forget those days and punish her for her wilful ways.

Mom peeped in through the half closed door. They were playing jacks on the parlor floor, playing jacks and quarrelling, too, just as two children are apt to do. She frowned, it was more than half caress, "I will have to punish them both, I guess."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Origin of Confetti.

The history of confetti is rather curious. Several years ago a large printing works in Paris was turning out immense quantities of calendars, through which a small round hole had been punched to receive an eyelet for holding the sheets together. A heap of the little circular scraps of paper cut out by the punch accumulated on a table, and one of the machine men amused himself by scattering a handful of them over a working girl's hair. She immediately snatched up a handful and threw them in his face. Other girls followed her example, and the first confetti battle began. The head of the establishment came in when it was at its height, and being what the Americans call a "smart man," he at once realized that there was "money in it." He ordered special machinery, placed large quantities of the new article on the market, made a fortune and created a new industry.

The Ways of Moles.

Among common animals few have been less studied in their life history than the mole. An English naturalist, Mr. Lionel E. Adams, says that under the "fortress" which the mole constructs above the surface of the ground will always be found a series of tunnels running out beneath the adjacent field. A curious feature almost invariably found is a perpendicular run penetrating about a foot below the bottom of the nest and then turning upward to meet another run. A mole is never found in his nest, although it may be yet warm from his body when opened. Guided by smell and hearing, a mole frequently locates the nest of a partridge or pheasant above his run and, penetrating it from below, eats the eggs. The adult mole is practically blind, but there are embryonic indications that the power of sight in the race has deteriorated.

An Arab Legend.

"There is none so poor but there is one poorer."

A poor Arab spent his last barn on a handful of dates and went up on a high cliff to eat them and die. As he threw the stones over a lean hand shot out below and caught them.

"Ho!" said he. "Why do you catch my date stones?"

"Because, O brother," answered a weak voice, "I have not eaten these three days, and Allah has sent these stones to save my life."

"Praise be to Allah," answered the first man, "for he has saved me also, for here is one poorer than I."

And both men went into the city.

An Ingenious Defense.

Nimble wits and a gift tongue frequently save erring "coppers" on trial before the deputy commissioner at headquarters. Some of the "defenses" put up by offenders are more ingenious than convincing. Not long ago a giant patrolman, accused of being about a quarter of a mile off his beat, evoked this excuse, "You see, it was like this, your honor, I was patrolling my post when I thought I heard a man up the street yelling 'Fire! Fire!' I ran in the direction of the sound, and would you believe me, Mr. Commissioner, there stood a fellow out on the sidewalk trying to wake up a friend of his on the second floor, and he was yelling with all his might 'Meyer! Meyer!' "Well, that's a brand new one," said the trial commissioner, the suspicion of a smile crossing his face. "Complaint dismissed."—New York Tribune.

Odd Superstitions.

In England there is a superstition that if a bride and groom eat perlwinkle leaves together they will love one another. Should he after marriage prove recalcitrant here is a way to win him back: Take a piece of the root of a wallflower and a partridge's heart, roll them into a ball and make the man eat it. If you want to know whether your lover loves you, crush some bleeding heart. If the juice is red, he does; if it is white, he does not.

His Mistake.

They were in the thick of their first quarrel.

"I thought your tastes were simple," said the husband, "I didn't expect to find you such a high flier."

"Yes, you did," she answered. "You knew all about my being a high flier, as you call it, but you thought I was a girlie."

I tried everything, but in vain. Finally, I tried Parisian Sage, and after using one bottle my hair started to grow, and has grown three or four inches inside of two months. I advise every lady who wants beautiful hair to use Parisian Sage." Miss Meta M. Kruger, Brownstown, Minn., June 8, 1910.

A Sympathetic Letter.

Among those who wrote letters to Mayor Gaynor, expressing sympathy for him when he was shot was an inmate of a Clinton (N. Y.) prison. Mayor Gaynor replied to the prisoner in these tender words: "I thank you exceedingly for your kind letter. I am glad to receive the good will of all those who desire to amend and lead those who are not really bad men, many of you are not really bad men, but unfortunate men, and that God so sees you. There are many of us who would be the same as you are if we had had the same trouble and obstacles in our lives. Do not be discouraged. I shall not speak of my trouble in view of the greater trouble of you men. Let us be patient and content."
